DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

The Affidavit filed on 10/10/2006 under 37 CFR 1.131 has been considered but is ineffective to overcome the Burnbaum reference for the following reasons:

1. Applicants need to present statements as per MPEP 715.07(c):

The 37 CFR 1.1.31 affidavit or declaration must contain an allegation that the acts relied upon to establish the date prior to the reference or activity were carried out in this country or in a NAFTA country or WTO member country. See 35 U.S.C. 104.

2. Graig D. Hagelin may not merely confirm statements of events of Richard H. Davidson but needs to declare what events of conception, reduction to practice and diligence he has knowledge of.
3. Joseph F. Watkins, Jr. did not execute MPEP 715.04.
4. There is no evidence of diligence for the period just prior to January 13, 2003 - just prior to a reduction to practice.

Item 14 of Mr. Davidson's Declaration states: "In June of 2002, we hired the firm of Herren, Burstein, Sheridan, Cevasco, Bottinelli, Litt & Ham, LLC, to evaluate our invention and to begin drafting an application ultimately leading to a filing of an application with the United States Patent and Trademark Office. From June of 2002, and working closely with our attorneys; the firm of Welsh & Flaxman, which conducted prior art searches for us; as well as our patent draftsman, Robert Bush, various drafts of the patent application were generated, reviewed, revised and ultimately refined into a final form application which was filed in July, 2003".

However, no evidence in support of this statement has been offered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 6, 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Boyden et al. (US 2002/0082733) in view of Burnbaum et al. (US 2004/0138899).

Claim 1. Boyden et al. (Boyden) teaches a system for flavor processing, comprising:

a plurality of consumer workstations linked to a central processing hub (accessing the manufacturer's website over the Internet indicates ability for a plurality of customers to access said website, [0017]);

the central processing hub (manufacturer's website) including means for providing consumers with information regarding flavors, the means for providing including a flavor search system through which a consumer may identify desired flavor based upon a series of input criteria [0018]; wherein the criteria include flavor descriptors, and usage categories are selected from the group consisting of bakery, dairy, beverage, confections and oral care [0015], [0016]; said flavor search system includes means for searching available flavors via flavor descriptors and flavor definitions [0015], [0016].

 Boyden does not teach means for selecting flavor legal status chosen from the group consisting of artificial, natural and artificial, natural flavor, natural type and natural WONF. However, Boyden does teach that artificial flavorings are mixtures of synthetic compounds that may be chemically identical to natural flavorings [0011]. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Boyden to include means for selecting flavor legal status chosen from the group consisting of artificial, natural and artificial, natural flavor, natural type and natural WONF, as disclosed in Boyden, because artificial flavorings are low in cost, thereby decreasing the cost of the final product.

 Also, Boyden does not teach that said system includes a flavor search system which is associated with the central processing hub, said flavor search system including means for providing a search results list of available flavors fulfilling the flavor descriptor requirements and the flavor definition requirements.

 Burnbaum teaches a system which includes a searchable database which is associated with the server (hub), wherein a user can specify search terms for the type of food and ingredients in order to find a desired recipe [0020].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Boyden to include a searchable database, as disclosed in Burnbaum, because it would advantageously allow to guide users in cooking using specific recipes, as specifically taught by Burnbaum [0010].

Claim 6. Said system wherein the criteria further includes solubility of the flavor (physical form such as water-soluble) [0016].

Claim 11. Said system wherein the means for providing also including means for permitting a user to select the preparation of a custom flavor [0015], [0016].

Claim 12. Said system wherein the consumer workstations and the central processing hub are connected via the Internet [0015].

Claim 13. Said system further including means for providing general information regarding flavors (flavor type, end use, price) [0016].

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Jelen et al. (US 6,129,276) teaches a system which includes a searchable database which is associated with the server, wherein the user can specify search terms for the type of ingredients in order to find a desired recipe.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
